Move the Solution, Not the Problem

Completed Project-Home Heating Oil Remediation - Budd Lake, New Jersey

Following excavation and removal of a leaking UST, there was still some contamination below the chimney and back wall of the residence. Instead of supporting the chimney and foundation it was decided to use Nano Peroxide to treat the limited volume of contamination.

Even though the plan called for a single injection point, the actual injection consisted of three locations, all injected at 9 feet, 11 feet and 14 feet, to insure a complete treatment of areas that did not test too high but could have contained some residual. Testing 30 days later showed all samples well below standards and an NFA was issued months later.
